

Is a Mammogram Enough?

Who should have a Breast MRI?

For the majority of women, traditional mammography provides sufficient screening for breast cancer. However, there are some women for whom the added breast MRI procedure makes sense.

Those women include:

- Women recently diagnosed with breast cancer
- Women with a previous history of cancer
- Women at high risk for breast cancer
- Women with a family history (sister, mother, grandmother)
- BRCA1 and BRCA2 carriers
- Women with known dense breast tissue or scar tissue from prior surgeries
- Women with breast implants
