

St. Vincent College of Health Professions COVID-19 Response

Coronavirus Disease (“COVID-19”) pandemic declared by the World Health Organization has caused significant disruption to business, services, and – most importantly – the health of millions of Americans. Ascension St. Vincent leadership is focused on the health and safety of those we serve and those that serve alongside us. Likewise, the St. Vincent College of Health Professions is deeply committed to the health and safety of the next generation of allied health professionals without compromising the educational mission of the College or its respected programs.

There are no plans to delay or cancel any upcoming enrollments for any programs. Individual programs may have some variations in their admission processes – check each program’s web pages for specific information.

All programs all currently operating as normal. Current students are attending classes in-person and performing clinicals, with proper masking, social-distancing and screening. The St. Vincent College follows Ascension St. Vincent policies and practices with respect to student screening, health-related absences, and return to on-site participation.

The St. Vincent College may need to suspend college on-site operations should it be deemed necessary. Should that occur, online education of didactic program content may or may not occur depending on the specific program and accreditation limitations. Given the highly fluid nature of the COVID-19 pandemic, college suspensions of on-site operations occur in 2-week increments. This allows the college to continually monitor the situation and make timely decisions to safeguard the health and safety of the next generation of allied health professionals without compromising the educational mission of the St. Vincent College or its respected programs.
